Subject: Our time together and other thoughts
Date: Tuesday, September 11, 2018 2:54:30 PM

Thank you , Jayne for your thoughtful email.
These are my thoughts:

I'm sad that we seemed to have gone to such a negative place. Our purpose was to come together on behalf of our classmates and create a fun evening. We still can do that!

This has been an interesting life lesson. We made some mistakes on how we communicated to one another . We are all business people but, seemed to not be able to manage one another?

Greg, we did indeed ask you to create a website. We wanted a simple site that people could go to for various reasons. We are appreciative of your efforts. However, the site you created was complicated and difficult to work with. We tried politely to tell you that it was not working. We didn't communicate it well as we should have as we did not want to hurt your feelings. We didn't communicate and you were not listening to us. It shouldn't have resulted in a shouting match. (I was not there but, I was told it degenerated to that). Feelings are hurt and people are angry.

We also stepped over people's shoes (so to speak). People were assigned roles and than some people took it upon themselves to jump in and take over the roles.

Private meetings were held. That's ok. Just share with us what you talked about. Also, if you joined the committee and did nothing. Perhaps you need to re-think about joining groups if you don't do anything. Just a thought.

So, here we are.... angry, upset... Let's let it go. Let's go back to the warm fuzzy we felt in the beginning. We can!

Thanks for hearing me out.

Dear Greg, and everybody else,

I know I've missed some meetings, but I can say this: we are nearing the end of volunteering for this committee to hold our 40th reunion for our classmates. We have each put in a bunch of time and we each have our own personalities, but, I believe wholeheartedly, that we all volunteered for this task because of our love of our school and the desire to have a great event for our classmates that can come.

What I see is that we are looking at things a bit differently. I was not at the first few meeting when the request for a class web page was brought up. What I see is that the class web page is a separate entity from the reunion. This committee has worked together to hold an event, when the event is over, the committee dissolves. The class web page is a fluid product for our classmates to go to for on going information and connection. Not every classmate is on FB, nor do they necessarily want their info displayed, but may be interested in a dedicated website. I, personally, have no problem announcing this to our classmates and giving them your contact info, Greg, if they are interested in donating to the cost, or want to help you in this endeavor. That being said, at this time I am focusing on the final aspects of the reunion myself.

All the best,

Jayne

Jay, Joey, Leslie,

I deposited the cheque reimbursing me for the domain registration for wwhs1978.org, e.g., US$17.25.

In light of the escalating hostility, criticism and animosity by the three of you towards me over the past three months, which has escalated to yelling at meetings, I have a solution. I have attached a number of files used in the development of the web site at the domain, wwhs1978.org. The files include a SQL file with all the copy, Element (org.wwhs1978.www, USA, English).sql and Element (org.wwhs1978.www, USA, French), the HTML file of the home page, Default.aspx, Default.aspx.cs, the master template file, Site.Master, Site.Master.cs, and the Cascading Style Sheet file, style-refactored.css. I have also include the two Contact Us pages, /Contact/Default.aspx, /Contact/Default.aspx.cs, /Contact/SendInquiry.aspx, /Contact/SendInquiry.aspx.cs as Leslie, you had a problem with splitting the Contact Us functionality into two HTML pages.

I challenge you, Jay, Joey and Leslie to run with the files and develop a web site that we can all be proud of. You can rearrange the buttons, the fields, the forms, and the user interface anyway you wish. Remember. Further, you can design your own Walt Whitman logo on Photoshop as I did, the one you, Islie, thought was wrong. The site has to render on all major mobile phones as well as tablets as well as the four major browsers, i.e., Microsoft Internet Explorer/Edge, Safari, Firefox and Chrome, again, on all devices and platforms. Please also stay within a US$17.25 budget that you limited me on. One more thing you cannot cheat and use a licensed framework like WIX.COM or similar set of development tools, nor digital certificates. WIX.COM costs money. Finally please be prepared to present the finished site to the entire planning committee for approval via WebEx.com within a one week timeframe. WebEx.com costs 24.95 per month. I finished the framework of the site over the course of one weekend, so one week should suffice seeing you claim to be experts in web site development. If the group prefers your collective work over mine, I will happily step down and defer to you, Jay, Joey, and Leslie going forward as well as in 2028 for the sixtieth reunion.

So, do you accept challenge? Or are you going to say, "it's too late to build a web site" or "we should just go with evite.com and squareup.com and forget any web site."? I remind you that you handed me the job of web site manager for a reason, cause you trusted me to do the job and you collectively lack the skill to get the job done.

In the meantime I will take out a digital certificate as promised. In addition I will open a go fund me page to solicit donations for the digital certificate, which is priced at 99.00 per year.

Ben,

I would be happy to accept your US$5.00 donation towards the digital certification the next time we meet.
